- SANIJET's Pipeless Baths keep travelers safe from harmful bacteria at leading destination properties worldwide -

DALLAS – Memorable photos, a great tan, and a Staph infection? Summer vacations should be about relaxing, not getting wound up worrying about infectious diseases. But travelers must be aware, according to new reports from a leading microbiologist and the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), that 100% of piped whirlpool baths, such as those in luxury hotels and spas, and 97% of traditional pedicure baths, like those in salons, tested positive for harmful bacteria. What kind of travel souvenirs are dangerous microbes, such as E. coli, Fungi, Legionella, Staphylococcus, and Pseudomonas?

Leading vacation properties such as the Salish Lodge & Spa in Snoqualmie, Washington, the Outrigger Waikiki on Waikiki Beach, Hawaii, and the Shade Hotel in Manhattan Beach, California, are raising the bar on guest safety and satisfaction. These luxury properties have installed in-room Pipeless™ Spa Baths by SANIJET to provide their discriminating guests with safe, luxurious pampering that they expect from these premier destinations.

SANIJET's Pipeless Spa Baths and Pedicure Baths eliminate the risk of infection by eliminating the pipes where harmful deposits collect. Bath debris includes sloughed dead skin, body and bath oils, and soap scum found in traditional hotel, spa, and salon whirlpool and pedicure baths, creating an ideal breeding ground for infectious bacteria.

SANIJET's revolutionary technology not only ensures a safe bath, but provides spa-quality hydrotherapy with personal massage settings, targeted hydrotherapy jets, and soothing chromatherapy lighting. Unlike traditional noisy pumps and blowers, the Pipeless Baths are whisper quiet for ultimate relaxation.

By making guest satisfaction, enjoyment, and safety their top priorities, leading properties such as Salish, Shade and the Outrigger are giving guests a safe in-room hydrotherapy experience that leaves them relaxed, invigorated, and free from infection. At distinguished inns, boutique hotels, resort destinations and hotels worldwide, travelers can now bathe and rest easy – with SANIJET's Pipeless Spa Baths, every bath is pure, clean and safe.
